Spring Pet Safety

Spring is an exciting time of year. Teaming with life and a sense of renewal, however, with Spring comes dangers for our pets. Springtime is a time when plants flourish, and gardens grow. Animals are notorious for eating things they shouldn't. Many houseplants and outdoor plants are poisonous to our furry friends. Awareness of which plants pose a risk is the first step in prevention. If they do happen to get something they shouldn't, call us or the ASPCA Animal Poison Control Center for help. If you have any of these poisonous plants around your house or yard, keep them out of your pet's reach or limit their access.

More to Share

Visit our website www.montevistaanimalhospital.com for practice news, blog, and advice from the MVAH family!

Ultrasounds and more...

Did you know that our hospital now offers full ultrasound services with our very own Dr. Hogle? Doctor Hogle has attended many hours of advanced ultrasound training to bring our patients another tool for optimal health.

Open without restrictions

After a few long years, we are ecstatic to be able to welcome our clients inside our hospital restriction free! Enjoy a coffee and sit by our fire while we care for your furry family member. While we are open, we still maintain the strictest methods of sanitation and safety.

Don't let pests bug your pet!

Spring is prime time for pests. While we are lucky to live in the Great Basin, which is relatively low on the bug list, many disease-causing insects are still present. Our region has fleas, ticks, and mosquitos that all carry diseases that can affect our pets. Many of which can spread to us. We recommend a monthly flea and tick preventative and a heartworm preventative to protect our pets. Call us to discuss our tailored recommendations for products to protect your pets.

Online store

Visit our online store for your pet's medication, food, and supply needs. The internet can be a scary place to buy pet products, given a lack of reputable sourcing and regulation. Our online store sources all items directly from reputable manufacturers. Shop online worry-free directly from our website with MyVetStore.
